WEEKLY GRAIN COMMENTARY

Kevin McNew Adjunct Professor, University of Maryland

Grain futures took a dive this week with corn giving up 18 cents a bushel and soybeans suffering a 16 cent loss. Wheat managed a 10-cent gain thanks to a 13-day advance yesterday. Crop conditions reported by USDA early in the week showed a slight drop in corn and soybean conditions. Both registered a one percent decline in the good to excellent category. However, both readings are slightly better than last year. In addition, forecasts of cooling temperatures and better chances of precipitation gave sellers the upper hand early in the week, but even with no real weather improvement by late in the week bears still managed to keep the markets moving lower. Topsoil conditions vary greatly across the Plains and Midwest. The Plains remains firmly entrenched in a drought from Texas to North Dakota. In the last few weeks, dry and hot weather has started to push the drought into the Western Corn belt of Iowa and Minnesota. For corn, weather in the next few weeks can still influence final crop output but for soybeans critical weather is still a few weeks away. While prices moved lower this week, supply and demand conditions for new-crop corn could prove to be dramatically different than 2005. Even with normal yields for the 2006 crop, ending stocks for 2006/07 will be at 1 billion bushels, off from 2 billion bushels in 2005/06. As such, there is little margin for error as any yield losses would likely pull stocks down enough to warrant nearly $3 corn futures, we below $2.60. Soybeans, on the other hand, are still struggling to overcome a large carryout of old stocks and continue to drift sideways to slightly lower. Exports have been above expectations, but traders aren't losing sight of an ample supply of new-crop soybeans.

WEEKLY CROP WEATHER SUMMARY – July 17, 2006

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS

Scattered showers throughout the week added to the already saturated soils. Rain and warm temperatures pushed corn development last week as corn is now 59 percent silked; slightly higher than the 51 percent five year average. Soybeans are now 90 percent emerged and 13 percent bloomed. Additional precipitation in some areas caused problems for farmers with standing water in fields. Winter wheat harvest is now 87 percent complete. There were 5.5 days suitable for field work. Although vegetable harvest has progressed, vegetables such as cucumbers and watermelons showed some damage due to excessive soil moisture. Snap beans are now 55 percent harvested which is ahead of the 36 percent five year average. Sweet corn is now 23 percent harvested. Fruits are still in mostly good condition.

Pastures were in fair to mostly good condition with 2 percent very poor, 6 percent poor, 31 percent fair, 45 percent good, and 16 percent excellent. Hay supplies were 5 percent very short, 14 percent short, 77 percent adequate, and 4 percent surplus.
